Letter of Intent

What will your legacy be?

“If we do not talk about it, if we do not remember, then the world will never know.”

Henry Meyer, local Holocaust survivor

Henry passed away in December 2006: if we do not tell his story, who will? A time will come when we will not have eyewitnesses to the Holocaust among us.

The Center for Holocaust and Humanity Education (CHHE) preserves the eyewitness testimonies of individuals like Henry. By showcasing their testimonies and artifacts, we preserve the memory of those who perished and those who survived for future generations.

Our programs in the religious and secular communities empower thousands of students, community members, and hundreds of teachers to be leaders for positive change in their communities—to become upstanders who embrace tolerance and inclusion. By empowering educators to teach about the Holocaust effectively, we serve their students and the wider community and help create a more inclusive world that promotes justice for all.

Our legacy donors are people, like you, who:

- Understand that the Holocaust has essential lessons to guide our future: preventing future genocide, and promoting social justice and civic responsibility.
- Are committed to ensuring that future generations honor the lessons of the Holocaust.
- Believe it is critical to preserve the testimonies and artifacts of the eyewitnesses.

Please join us! The next generation is counting on you.
